Epoxy Resin Coating Information

We had a coating specially formulated for us to treat the inside of bats after they are shaved which has been shown to increase the bat's durability. The formula is made of the same materials composite bats are made of and then an epoxy resin is added to it for adhesion purposes. The epoxy resin seals the fibers of the composite on the bat's inner walls which adds structural integrity to help slow down the formation of stress cracks which eventually lead to pieces flaking off and causing rattles, loss of performance and larger cracks. The composite material in the formula gives strength to the inner walls and also adds flexibility so that it doesn't crack and flake off like a normal epoxy resin would. The inner walls will have more of their original look and feel. The product itself is very expensive to make as was the process of having it developed so unfortunately we do have to charge extra for it but we think you'll find it worth the extra cost.

Finished Weight Information

Option 1: If you would simply like the bat shaved and left at whatever weight it ends up after shaving write "Do not add any weight"

Option 2: If you have a desired weight that is the same as the bat's current weight or heavier, write the desired weight in oz. ie 27oz You may also write EL if you prefer an endloaded feel or BAL if you prefer a more balanced feel. We can add weight into the endcap area and/or handle area depending on which you prefer.

Option 3: If you would like the bat to end up significantly lighter than it's original weight write the desired finished weight. In this case we will shave the bat to its ideal wall thickness for performance and durability as usual. When finished, we may be able to remove additional weight from the handle or endload of the bat on certain types of bats. Please note that there will be cases where we simply cannot get the bat as light as requested. In this case we will get the bat as light as possible. If you have questions regarding how light we can make your bat please email us prior to sending the bat.
